Hi All:

Well, we managed to swab 170 people today and ship everything out to BCCDC for results.

Now we anxiously await the results. The FHA told us today that the MHO is considering taking us off of outbreak before we have the results in hand because it is so highly unlikely that anyone will test positive now. They may tell us tomorrow morning but I still feel that Monday will be the day. I have been wrong in the past but I feel confident that Monday will be the latest date.

You must all be going stir crazy! When I see you at lunch and dinner, you seem to be holding up remarkable well!

Just a reminder that the dining room will take another week or so to open back up for table meals.

Have as good a weekend as possible in these trying times!

Sincerely,

Glenn Bell
